

About Promise Welfare Society

With a focused goal to educate excelling but underprivileged students; Promise Welfare Society was established on October 23rd of 1989, headed by HRH Princess Alia Tabba'a, and has in the last 25 years managed to do just that for over 500 Jordanian students.

Promise Welfare Society is keen to fulfill its promise through helping individuals to pursue their studies; it pours its focus on education. The Society aims to give those individuals a chance to improve their status in the community, and to arm them with the knowledge that will allow them to build better future for themselves.

The Society believes that education is a right for all people, so it has and continues to make a noticeable difference in the life of many Jordanian families through not only supporting students through their studies, but also offering soft loans, poor families fund, and productive rehabilitation program and charity campaigns.

Aside from giving 500 students the chance to learn, grow and help their own families. The Society also signed an agreement with Union Bank two years ago to provide students with soft loans to facilitate completing undergraduate study.

It provides monthly financial backing for 50 poor families, and provides assistance to perform surgeries for those unable to pay for it. In addition to that; it distributes 1500 nutritive coupons on poor families in different provinces of Jordan annually.

The Society also lends a hand to brothers and sisters in the Arab world who have been affected and burdened by war to alleviate their situation, whether those are in Gaza, Iraq, Syria, Lebanon or elsewhere.

The Society believes in building a spirit of giving and to that end the Promise Welfare Teams were set up in twelve private schools in Jordan to do various voluntary activities and voluntary workshops to provide them with the necessary skills in life, and to promote and nurture voluntary work.
